Defining Race

- Race is a contrived sociopolitical way to categorize people based on skin color, which doesn't represent any other underlying differences between people. (York, 2016).
- In other words race is a social construct.
Four levels of Racism

- Internalize
- Interpersonal
- Institutional
- Structural

Internalize Racism

- Lies within individuals. These are our private beliefs and biases about race and racism, influenced by our culture. Internalized racism can take many different forms, including racial prejudice toward other people of a different race (Center for Social Justice).

Interpersonal Racism

- Occurs between individuals. These are biases that occur when individuals interact with others and their private racial beliefs affect their public interactions. Examples include racial slurs, bigotry, hate crimes and racial violence (Center for Social Justice).
Institutional Racism

Occurs within institutions and systems of power. It is the unfair policies and discriminatory practices of particular institutions – schools, workplaces, the criminal justice system, and yes, the child welfare system – that routinely produce racially inequitable outcomes for people of color and advantages for white people (Center for Social Justice).

Structural Racism

Is racial bias among institutions and across society. It involves the cumulative and compounding effects of an array of societal factors including the history, culture, ideology and interactions of institutions and policies that systematically privilege white people and disadvantage people of color (Center for Social Justice).

Individual vs. Institutional Racism

- Beliefs, attitudes, and actions of individuals that support or perpetuate racism in conscious and unconscious ways.
- Examples: telling a racist joke, believing in the inherent superiority of white people over other racial groups, or not hiring a person of color.

- The ways in which policies and practices of organizations or parts of systems create different outcomes for different racial groups.
- Examples: federal housing policies, redlining, or mass incarceration.
Difference between Racism and Prejudice

Racism is:
A system in which public policies, institutional practices, cultural representations, and other norms work in various, often reinforcing ways to perpetuate racial group inequity (York, 2016)

Prejudice is:
A preconceived opinion that is not based on reason or actual experience (Oxford Dictionary)

Difference between Diversity, Inclusion, and Equity

- Diversity: people are represented
- Inclusion: people are empowered, their voices are heard
- Equity: results from policies, practices, and programs

What is implicit bias?

- Activated involuntarily (i.e., individual not aware of biases)
- Pervasive and robust
- Does not necessarily align with our declared beliefs
- Develops early in life through socialization
- Lack of exposure and experiences with other cultural groups
- Media reinforces stereotypes
- Malleable, but can be unlearned and replaced with new mental associations
Black people are looting for food, while white people are finding food.

Why does it matter?

- Implicit Bias impacts EVERYTHING!
  - Attractiveness bias (Salter, Mixon, & King, 2012)
  - Height bias (Judge & Cable, 2004)

- Implicit bias predicts the extent to which...
  - Police officers use force when arresting Black children (Gaff et al., 2014)
  - Arbitrators decide labor grievances in favor of women over men (Girvan, Donnen, Bregida, 2015)
  - Pediatricians recommend less pain medication for Black children than White (Cooper et al., 2012; Sabin & Greenwald, 2012)

To Understand Equity, We Also Must Understand Privilege

- Privilege: a special right, advantage, or immunity granted or available only to a particular person or group of people
- Racial Equity: Racial identity no longer predicts access to education or success in life because we have worked to identify and eliminate policies and practices that privilege one group, but suppress another...
Equity and Disciplinary Practices

- 5,000 preschoolers were suspended at least once and nearly 2,500 were suspended a second time (2014)
- Black preschoolers: 3.6 times more likely to be suspended than their White peers (2016)
- Boys: 49% of the preschool population, but 82% of all suspensions (2014)
- Girls make up 20% of preschool female enrollment but represent 54% of female preschoolers suspended more than once (2014).

Studies spanning 40 years show that Black children are up to four times more likely to be suspended than White students.

(Bradshaw et al., 2010; Children’s Defense Fund, 1975; Milner, 2013; Skiba et al., 2011)

Equity and Instructional Practices

- Students of color tend to experience lower quality instructional practices than their White peers (Phillips et al., 1994; Piasta et al., 2002)
- Black children generally experience lower quality activity settings and receive fewer rich, stimulating experiences than White children (Early et al., 2010)
Equity and Teacher-Child Relationships

Black children tend to have relationships with their teachers that are less positive than those formed with White children (Walker, Alter, & Landers, 2013).

Black children have more negative and conflictual relationships with teachers than White children (e.g., Hughes, Gleason, & Zhang, 2005; Kesner, 2000; Murray & Murray, 2014).

“Cradle-to-Prison Pipeline”

- Preschool-to-prison pipeline was coined to describe the disproportionate number of young Black children who are suspended or expelled from early learning environments.

- Exclusionary practices:
  - Result in interrupted education
  - Increase the likelihood that Black children experience repeated suspensions and expulsions both in early childhood and beyond
  - Are related to later academic achievement and school dropout rates
  - Entrance into the criminal justice system

By kindergarten entry, many children have been labeled and sorted into categories according to behavior, which has negative effects on children’s self-worth, their perception of school as being safe and supportive, and is directly related to chronic absenteeism and suspension.

“Not everything that can be faced can be changed, but nothing can be changed until it is faced.”
James Baldwin
Addressing Equity in Education

• We are entrenched in “first generation” equity work©.
  ▪ Isolated or ‘band aid’ interventions
  ▪ Based upon a blame the victim mentality (Black children and families are at-risk and in need of fixing)
  ▪ Unwillingness to identify and address root causes

First Generation Equity Work ©

Makes us feel like we are doing something meaningful
Allows us to stay in a place of comfort
Maintains the opportunity and achievement gaps
Does little to address root causes

Second Generation Equity Work

• Borrowed from Guralnick (1993):
  ▪ Early intervention was in the midst of a rapid period of change
  ▪ Marked by a movement away from superficial analyses regarding the effectiveness of services and supports for young children with disabilities
  ▪ Researchers and policy makers were being pushed to ask more specific questions and develop a more nuanced understanding about how to meet the needs of young children and their families.
Moving Into Second Generation Equity Work

- Will require a unique commitment and determination
- Let go of the traditional ‘band aid’ approach to education and intervention
- Push through some discomfort to understand the structural barriers and root causes as well as our own role in perpetuating disparities
- Keen understanding of how our systems were set up and how they have morphed over time

Equity efforts so far........

- Reliance on punishment vs discipline
- Focus on implementing isolated interventions
- Educational practices based on White European values – including early childhood education
- New emphasis on “trauma-informed care”
- Siloed efforts within communities

Current Equity Work is Grounded in Colorblindness

- Belief that there is no racial hierarchy
- Failure to consider the permanence of race’s role within our nation’s institutions
- Reliance on band aid interventions or approaches
- Sustains White as the norm and ensures this cultural frame of reference for all behaviors, interactions, and experiences as well as the establishment of policies and practices
Colorblind Ideology

• Colorblindness actually prevents us from thinking critically about race.
• It allows to avoid talking about racial inequity in schools.
• Colorblindness actually leads to more biases.

Guiding Principles for Achieving Equity

A paradigm shift will be needed to change the way we view education for all children.

It will be necessary to build the skills, knowledge, and willingness to challenge beliefs within the workforce.

Supports and resources will be needed to build capacity.
Achieving Equity in Early Childhood Education

• Focus on outcomes is important, but we also must:
  • Examine the root causes of inequities, including what they look like in everyday practice.
  • Eliminate policies, practices, and attitudes that perpetuate disparate outcomes.
  • Enact policies and practices that address the root causes of inequity and promote better outcomes.

(National Council of Teachers of English, 2016)

Cultural Disconnect between Home and School

European American culture greatly influences early childhood. Content of teacher education programs often based on White American-European theorists.

Majority of early childhood teachers:
  • Are white monolingual especially in K-3 settings
  • Lack experience and exposure to children from diverse backgrounds
  • Unaware of white privilege
  • Often view children from other cultures from a deficit lens
  • May not be comfortable discussing race

Culturally diverse students are less likely to have their:
  • academic and social needs met
  • cultural experience and backgrounds affirmed & validated
  • cultural qualities honored and respected

They are more likely to be measured by White middle-class standards

Differences between Current and Culturally Responsive Anti-Bias Practices

Typical Learning Environment
- Rule-driven
- Conformist
- Rigid, order
- Thing-focused
- Hierarchical

Culturally Responsive Anti-Bias Environment
- Freedom-loving
- Creative
- Flexible
- People-focused
- Democratic

Sullivan, 2016

Principles of Culturally Responsive Anti-Bias Pedagogy
- Children’s cultural references included in all aspects of learning
- Learning within the context of culture
- All children are welcomed, supported, and provided with the best opportunities to learn
- Positive for children’s self-concept
- Focus on teaching equity and social justice
Culturally Responsive Anti-Bias Practices

- Behavior management
- Instructional practices
- Establishing teacher-child relationships
- Positive identity development

Benefits of Culturally Responsive Anti-Bias Education for All Children

- Encourages a true sense of self by helping children from all cultural backgrounds engage in positive identity development
- Promotes healthy development of all children
- Prepares children for the future by helping them develop cross-cultural skills that will be needed to fully participate in society
- Prevents social isolation

Train-the-Trainer Approach to Sustainability

- One ECE organization becomes the “keeper of the vision” (e.g., Head Start, Pre-K)
- Existing PD program that includes coaches or TA providers
- Train coaches/TA providers on introductory training, CRAB practices, and practice-based coaching (PBC)
- Implement PBC to support teachers
Reflecting on Culturally Diverse Children, Families, and Communities

How can I better serve culturally diverse children, families and communities?

What do I need to become a culturally competent and responsive practitioner?

What does my program need to be more inclusive of diverse children and families?

What barriers exist that prevent me or (my program) from being more inclusive and equitable?
